

COLLECTION PRODUCT DESCRIPTIONS

Copy by Amanda Hampton

FRAME 1: TRIPTYCH.

From Byzantine churches to Gothic cathedrals, triptychs are the crown jewels of some of the most grandiose and preeminent classical structures. These tri-paneled works of art show how different perspectives can intertwine and create a single mesmerizing narrative, just like these tri-color frames. Bringing a round shape, singular bridge, and horned temples together on one face? Unprecedented, but these distinct layers of acetate add up to a mesmerizing whole.

Whether you're in need of blue-light blockers whilst browsing Tate Modern's online archives or readers to help you peruse the small print on the plaques at the Cloisters, these unisex frames will turn average-sized faces into works of art to rival the Garden of Earthly Delights.

FRAME 2: HI ART.

Classic Greek sculptors and modern-day avant garde creators may not have much in common at first glance, but their works share a certain intellectual tilt that distinguish them as high art. Once reserved for the tastes of the upper crust, high art has become a universal avenue of refinement and complexity, and it isn't reserved for paintings and statues.

These unisex frames are ideal for elevating wide-sized faces, whether you're seeing the world in fully-restored clarity with prescription lenses or slipping on a pair of sunglasses to gaze up at the Notre Dame. We've cut out the top layer of acetate to create a multi-layered masterpiece, and coupled with a classic square shape and unorthodox bridge, these frames are arresting without being gaudy. Say "hi" to this paradigm of eyewear, and allow them to bring out your inner visionary.

FRAME 3: MASTER PIECES.

Allow us to introduce you to our piece de resistance. A coup of layered acetate, this synthesis of circular and cat-eye shapes creates a mesmerizing cut-out pattern, leaving the impression of dazzling coalescence. When these fragments come together on wide-sized faces, expect a masterpiece to take shape.

Ideal for progressive lens-wearers to glance between gallery guides and life-sized murals, for those who need to pop on blue-light glasses to temper the glare of Yayoi Kusama's Infinity Room, and everything in between, these unisex frames are breathtaking in their complexity.

FRAME 4: MUSE.

A muse is something entrancing and intangible, something that galvanizes creativity. These average-sized frames lend a breath of the divine feminine to your aspect, whether you're sliding on sunglasses to stroll through old-world ruins or peering through readers at ancient Greek texts. With its one-of-a-kind sawtooth shape and sleek stainless-steel temples, these frames are sure to inspire you to be your own muse (and everyone else's).

FRAME 5: EH-SYMMETRICAL.

Uniformity is vastly overrated, as the Surrealists knew well. Rather than the melting clocks of Dali or the shrouds of Magritte, these frames feature a diamond shape on one side and a circular silhouette on the other to lend an aspect of the fantastically uncanny to wide-sized faces. Integrate the elements of faux cut-outs and avant-garde printed acetate, and you have all the materials necessary to create an electrifyingly quixotic gaze.

Whether you're gazing back at onlookers on the street through prescription lenses or using bifocals to glance between dissertation research and admirers at the archives, these unisex frames will turn you into an epochal exhibit to rival any at the Louvre. Symmetry? Eh. We'll raise you an off-kilter tour de force any day.